A virtual travel to the gallery

By Liubov Boichuk

Founded in 1984 by an artist, Agora Gallery is a contemporary art gallery dedicated to the promotion of national and international artists seeking exposure to the New York art market. Agora Gallery connects artists with professionals, art collectors, and other artists to create an ever growing family dedicated to the world of fine art.

I really liked this gallery at the first sight and, of course I took a view on the pictures. They're totally amazing and mesmerizing: the dainty colors, realistic perspective and quite captivating plots. So let's get started with viewing the pictures and brief feedback from me about them and their authors.

The Little Prince

Probably, you've recognized the little prince from the cognominal book by Antoine de Saint-Exupery. Once you remember from the book about this prince, you have noticed that his planet doesn't look like in the story. Originally, only the Rose and a butterfly (caterpillar) lived there. But here, in the picture, planet is full of plants and is levitating in the universe, but not whirling around a star. To me, this picture is even better and more splendid than in the book illustrations. It's full of colors, life and resembles to the Earth. And the background of the picture is marvelous and gets me tranquil.

About the

Salome Chelidze

“Every painting that I create is just a bouquet of positive emotions”

author

Georgian artist and restaurateur aspires to emulate positive emotions in her work, which is influenced with her cultural roots, religious imagery and impressionism. The self-taught artist has been passionate about painting and design her entire life. She also has worked in interior design and murals, including her own restaurant. Salome has hosted the American President at her restaurant during his visit to Georgia, signifying to her that Salome’s works should be exposed to wider audiences.

Pray For You

Now let's move to another one. This is a photography of an instantaneous moment of life that the author managed to capture.

Chace Gray

“Gray’s artistic process involves a dialogue between the written word and a visual.”

Photographer Chace Gray was born in Tokyo, Japan and has lived all over the world. Chace Gray was an editor at Vogue, Glamour and Harpers Bazaar magazines. Working with great photographers and editors gave the impetus to continue photography when she moved out west. Chace Gray captures the awe of the vistas, the land of the Bighorn Mountains and beauty on the plains of Wyoming. Rejecting the norms of contemporary photography, Chace Gray chooses an unfiltered approach that adds truth and authenticity to the work. By not digitally altering her photographs, the artist lets her surroundings speak for themselves. Her philosophy of capturing the moment is best expressed by a quote from Claude Monet, “ You have to know how to seize just the right moment in a landscape instantaneously, because that particular moment will never come again, and you’re always wondering if the impression you got was truthful.”

This awesome landscape inspires to create beautiful things and enjoy every moment of the life. It seems like the sun raises go through the clouds and light them up. I reckon that sky landscapes are the sincere story of life existence and make people feel a part of it.
