

Generation gap and the role of friends in teenager's life

Written by Liubov Boichuk, 9.11.2020

The main reasons of problems between parents and children, teenagers and adults:

- Misunderstanding, disagreements and discords on what children have to do and have not to
- The absence of the willing to discuss the kid's issues with parents; the lack of trust to parents; not ample quantity of attention that is payed to children
- Parents want children to follow the farfetched life of someone else; the environment of teenager chooses the profession for him/her

The misunderstanding between generation is an inherent and typical thing for all epochs and ages. It's not surprisingly that parents and their teenagers always had quarrels and collides. To me, this happens not only because of every person has his/her own point of view, but also traditions, customs and trends that people follow, can be the reason of a global generation gap.

Conflicts between parents and children influence negatively the relationship in the family and can cause the ruining of the outlook of the kid in teenager's age. So, it's extremely important to solve the problems between generations.

The solution of the problem

```
graph TD; A[The solution of the problem] --> B[Parents and children have to trust each other and become the closest friends]; A --> C[Not to be afraid to discuss the family relationship issues]; A --> D[To spend leisure time together; to take up common hobbies]; A --> E[To help teenagers to determine themselves and maintain their initiatives];
```

Parents and children have to trust each other and become the closest friends

Not to be afraid to discuss the family
relationship issues

To help teenagers to determine themselves
and maintain their initiatives

To spend leisure time together; to take up
common hobbies

The role of friends in our lives

The friends play a relevant role for everyone. They are the people we trust and respect. Doesn't matter, you're a sociable and courteous person, or not, you have a friend. By the way, some people are afraid of having close friends. So, such kinds of person are on friendly terms with their parents. It's superb, but

And do never forget: “Family and friendships are two of the greatest facilitators of happiness” – John C. Maxwell